BLACK'S SYSTEM A SUCCESS.

New Underground System for Propelling Electric Cars

Tested Yesterday for the First Time and Proved a Success—A Roanoke Company Will Manufacture the Motor and Appliances—Another Trial To-Day at 10 o'clock.

The test of the Black electric street railway system proved a great success yesterday.

The announcement in yesterday morning's Times that the test would take place on Commonwealth avenue, brought a large crowd to the scene of the trial during the day, and there were over a hundred or more witnesses lining the sidewalk and streets at the time the electricity was turned on.

Mr. Black and his assistant, Mr. Pollard, superintended the work, and were in the car, with many others, during the trial trip.

Two hundred and twenty volts were turned on a few minutes after 3 o'clock, and the car moved off smoothly, speeding up to the end of the line, a distance of several hundred yards, without any hitch and only an occasional jump, caused by the roughness of the newly-laid track.

On the return trip a stop was caused by the trolley bar striking a piece of the iron lining of the conduit, which had become displaced, but this defect was soon remedied, and, after several other trips, the test of Black's system was pronounced by all who saw it as a splendid success. The number of volts used, as stated already, was only 220, while 500 are usually required. It is said to propel the ordinary street car.

The fact that this invention, which promises to be one of great profit, is a Southern one, ought to make Southerners proud of it. The inventor, R. J. Black, is an architect, of Richmond.

Not being able to induce the Richmond people to take hold of his invention (for is a prophet ever honored in his own country?), Mr. Black came to enterprising, hustling Roanoke, and a company was organized to buy the patent of his invention, provided it prove a success. Some of the most prominent business men of Roanoke are in the company. R. H. Woodrum is the president.

Another test will take place this morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Black conceived the idea of his system nine months ago. As already stated, the trolley, instead of the brush system, is the distinguished characteristic of the invention. The electricity is conveyed to the car by means of an insulated wire in the trolley bar.

The opening in the conduit for the admission of the trolley bar is only half an inch wide, thus rendering it almost impossible for the conduit to become clogged with sand or by any other matter.

However, if this should be the case, "All that you have to do," said Mr. Black, "is to turn the water from the nearest hydrant into the conduit, and you will have it clean in a few minutes."

Mr. Black, and Mr. Pollard, who has been Mr. Black's right hand man in all his experiments, were two happy men yesterday.

The company organized to buy the patent will manufacture the motor and all the appliances in Roanoke, and thus the Magic City becomes the headquarters of an electric system that promises to become very valuable.

THE TIMES is the only paper in Roanoke which had the courage and enterprise to invest money in telegraphic franchises.

CHIMING BELLS.

Three New Bells for the Presbyterian Church.

The Presbyterian Church is to have a magnificent peal of three bells. The bells arrived yesterday and the work of elevating them to the tower of the church began immediately and is superintended by James Wiley, of the MeShane Bell Foundry, of Baltimore, where the bells were purchased.

The subscription for the purchase of the peal of bells was gotten up by Mr. Kuykendall, who presented one bell, the second in size, as a memorial bell. On it is inscribed "To my mother, Ann P. Kuykendall, born December 2nd, 1825, died January 4th, 1880."

The smallest bell also is a memorial bell, on which is inscribed "Hugh Campbell, born 1835, died 1889. Hugh Campbell was the little son of the pastor of the church."

The smallest bell weighs 565 pounds, the second in size, 867, and the largest, 1,584. The cost of the peal was $300.

The bells will be rung by next Sunday. Dr. Campbell had photographs taken of the bells before they were raised. He has in his study a photograph of the first bell of the church, raised five years ago. The bell was swung above an old stump in the yard of the church.

Junior Hose Company's Ball.

The Junior Hose Company will christen their rejuvenated hall by a grand opening ball on Christmas eve night. This popular young organization is a credit to the city, as well as a safeguard to its material interests, and is daily adding to its strength and popularity. Two new members were elected last night.

The reason why advertisers like THE TIMES is because their advertisements prove profitable.

A NEW BUILDING.

Campbell Street Soon to Have a $40,000 Building.

Rosenbaum Bros., W. F. Winch, S. M. Firey and J. W. Coon have determined to erect a four-story brick building on Campbell street just west of the Asberry building.

"This building," said Mr. Joseph Rosenbaum last night, "will be commenced in January, and pushed rapidly to completion."

"Our firm has had an application from a wholesale furniture house to rent them the Campbell street building when finished, but our trade has grown to such an extent that we will need all the space we can get ourselves in the near future, and are really uncomfortably crowded now. I also understand that Meads & Burke intend to extend their store back to Campbell street. Their business is also calling for more room."

Mr. Rosenbaum further said that the building would cost about $40,000. It will add much to the appearance of Campbell street, and it is believed will stimulate other building operations for business purposes along that street.

PERSONAL ITEMS.

What People are Doing in and Out of Roanoke.

The police force yesterday received warrants for their pay for the month of November.

John S. Davis was yesterday fined $3.50 in the mayor's court for drunkenness.

E. S. Stone, Jack Jounger, Charles Finney, William Scruggs and Mary Miller were yesterday lectured by the mayor and dismissed in his court for various offenses.

The foundation of the Lutheran Church will soon be ready for the stone work.

The wife of Officer J. A. Vest is recovering from her recent illness.

Officer L. N. Tinsley yesterday took to the station house, a stranger who was too drunk to take care of himself. When searched it was found that he would have been an excellent mark for a rifle, as he had upon him $10.15, a handsome gold watch and chain, a railroad ticket to Martinsburg, and a trunk check. He was locked up until he got sober.

Meads & Burke, the clothiers and tailors of Salem avenue, were the successful bidders for the new uniforms for the city police force at $34 each. The men are now being measured, and the uniforms will be ready for delivery by Christmas.

Miss L. C. Hall had $13 stolen from her yesterday morning. Sergeant Jones went to work on the case and arrested Cornelius Young, a negro boy, and recovered the money by night. The boy was released, as Miss Hall declined to prosecute.
